Brides are seeking out classic jewelry to complement today's more traditional dresses. It's jewelry that looks as if it could have been inherited, but is inherently modern. Witness the popularity of cushion-cut stones, featuring an antique cut with a romantic look. Even rarer are blue diamonds. "Only one special bride could wear these one-of-a-kind intense blue cushion-cut diamond earrings valued at over $2.5 million," says Richard Eiseman, owner of Eiseman Jewels. Graff nods to the past with an elegant scroll necklace and matching earrings. Then again, is there anything more classic than a simply spectacular white or yellow diamond ring?
